Program Duration: 3 Years (6 Semesters)

Semester 6

Financial Services:

This course covers the structure and functioning of financial services in the modern economy. Topics include mutual funds, insurance, leasing, venture capital, credit rating, and stockbroking. Students will learn about the products and operations of financial service providers.

Banking Law and Practice:

This course provides an overview of the legal framework and practical operations of the banking sector. Topics include the Banking Regulation Act, RBI guidelines, negotiable instruments, customer relationships, and various types of bank accounts and lending practices.

Taxation Laws:

This course offers a detailed study of both direct and indirect taxation in India. Topics include income tax provisions, GST (Goods and Services Tax), customs duty, and tax planning strategies. Students will learn compliance, filing procedures, and legal interpretations of tax laws.

Business Ethics:

This course explores ethical issues and social responsibilities in business. Topics include ethical theories, corporate governance, ethical decision-making, CSR (Corporate Social Responsibility), and sustainable business practices. It promotes integrity and accountability in business conduct.

Project Work:

This component involves practical research on a business-related topic, guided by a faculty supervisor. Students will apply theoretical knowledge to real-world situations, conduct data analysis, prepare a project report, and present their findings. It encourages independent learning and critical thinking.
